

Understanding Terrorism:

Lessons Learned from the First 50 Years of Research

26th Feb, 2025

6:00 PM

Sloan 112

What is terrorism? Why it is important to distinguish it from other forms of targeted violence?

This talk will identify the key lessons learned in our efforts to understand who becomes a terrorist and why. It will also highlight how social science can contribute to the development of practical interventions to prevent terrorism.

With Dr. John Horgan

Professor at Georgia State University's Department of Psychology

